

ASK AN ADVISOR

Young companies have questions, and seasoned fintech pros have answers and guidance

The Program

Ask An Advisor, which we often refer to as A3, provides startups and early-stage FinTech companies with direct access to the best and brightest individuals leading the FinTech industry.

Navigating our regional, national and global financial technology and financial services ecosystem is complicated. A3 is designed to connect startup, early stage and small company FinTech leaders with those who make things happen—FinTech senior executives versed in the complexities of our industry—so companies can innovate, grow and succeed.

Risk management, cross-border payments, marketing, UX/UI design—whatever your business challenges or questions, we've got an expert to connect you with.

Helping FinTechs Accelerate Growth – Friction-free, Flexible, and No Strings Attached!

How it works:

- The program is intended for leaders of startups, early-stage businesses, or small companies who have a defined set of challenges or questions they need answered.
- Once we have our challenge or area of focus, A3 will establish a 1-to-1 relationship between that business leader and a senior FinTech executive, who may also bring in other executives or experts to address specific challenges.
- There's a six-month minimum commitment for participating companies and executives. Expect to work together two to three hours per month virtually or in-person. The results are what you make of the program!
- There are no strings attached. Executives and Companies are free to extend or expand the relationship in any capacity at the conclusion of the program as they see fit.

Please contact Ania Lackey at alackey@fintechatlanta.org for more information

